I have lived in Goffs Oak nearly 40 years and seen many small residential developments take place until recently. There seems to be a race amongst developers to build as many properties as possible, without having any regard to the impact it has on the area/residents. Although initially some of these were on old nursery sites, theres a growing trend to try and build on greenfield sites, this development being such an example.

The land to be used is a wooded area with much wild life, some of which are, I believe protected species, not to mention the destruction of many trees, some of which have already been felled, until being stopped by the council, credit to them. However, it begs the question does the planning dept take into consideration the loss of natural habitat and the impact it will have on the environment, as well as increase in traffic and stretching even more of our local amenities . I appreciate the need for more housing but not at the cost to these vital resources. For these reasons alone I totally object to this development going ahead.
